DESCRIPTION

Mansefield is an impressive B Listed Georgian property, formerly the manse for the Alford Auld West Kirk which was originally at the centre of the parish. The original manse dates to 1718, with substantial additions in 1832 and Victorian times. The property sits in around 3.4 acres of outstanding garden grounds including the formal walled garden, rolling grass lawns and mature woodlands with meandering paths. The grounds are bordered by 250m of riverbank of the Leochel Burn to the north and west and offer a great deal of privacy and space for any proprietor. Mansefield is located within the Alford area of Donside, an extremely popular and growing town in Aberdeenshire, within very easy access of the Cairngorms National Park and Royal Deeside.

The extensive accommodation continues over four levels and offers the traditional features one would expect of such a home.

The main entrance vestibule continues to the hall, and this in turn leads to most accommodation to the ground level. The formal drawing room has a beautiful outlook over the front garden from the bay window and has an open fireplace. The dining room is a formal room, with an equally pleasant outlook over the garden and an open fireplace. There is also a superb home office, separate cloakroom, storeroom & steps down to the inner hall. The sitting room is a very spacious and comfortable room with wood burning stove and steps leading to the wonderful dining kitchen. The dining kitchen is fitted with a bespoke Murray & Murray kitchen with solid oak units and Kirkstone slate work tops. The heart of any home, this kitchen has a wood burning stove, a SMEG dual fuel range cooker, built in Miele dishwasher & built in NEFF ovens, steam oven & microwave and a Baumatic warming drawer; it is both a practical, yet luxury, working space within the property. From the kitchen an inner hall gives access out to the garden and to the main reception hall. This inner hall also leads you to the excellent shelved pantry and utility room with W.C. Access by stairs to the lower ground floor leads to two generous workshop rooms and the former coal cellar. There is direct access from this level outdoors, and the space here is extremely useful and well maintained.

As one continues up the stairs to the first floor there is the principal bedroom, a very spacious room, with an open fireplace flanked by tall windows. This room also enjoys built in wardrobes and an impressive ensuite bathroom with separate shower unit and underfloor heating. Bedroom 2 is an equally spacious double room and lies adjacent to the modern main family bathroom. There are three further good double bedrooms on the first floor, all of which enjoy varying views over the surrounding garden grounds. Stairs from the first-floor lead to the attic level. Bedroom 6 has a sky light window and there is a further attic room.

GARDEN GROUNDS

Mansefield enjoys around 3.4 acres of garden grounds offering privacy, shelter and plentiful outdoor space. A private sweeping driveway, flanked by neat hedging, leads to the front of the main house. The front garden is mostly rolling grass lawn, bordered by mature woodland rhododendrons and mature shrubs. Natural paths provide walks and adventures through the trees and round the beautiful Leochel Burn, which boundaries the property to the north and west. There are perfectly placed seating spots to enjoy the peace & quiet, the sound of water and the array of birds & wildlife. Red squirrels, roe deer, pheasants, woodpeckers, dippers & a variety of woodland birds are regularly seen.

The walled garden is an outstanding feature of this historic property and offers an idyllic and picturesque formal garden. Stone gravel paths meander through the colourful herbaceous borders, topiary, box hedging and mature fruit trees. There are herb gardens, kitchen gardens and a beautiful Alton timber framed greenhouse sits perfectly in this walled garden, whilst the timber pagoda offers a relaxing spot to overlook the garden grounds. The former Gardeners Cottage is a charming traditional building with upper level, and presently used for storage. The traditional steading is also an extremely useful building divided into three areas including garaging. A new timber shed adjacent to the steading, with double doors, offers further storage and working space. This steading building sits in the northeast side of the walled garden and has a separate access track from the public road. Both the gardener's cottage and steading may be suitable for conversion with the necessary permissions.
